Peace Doves, Reading Tree Bookclub & The Parent Survey

The children had a great transition back to school this week! They had no trouble slipping back into the routines and procedures of the classroom. Without prompting, the Preschoolers were able to line up quietly for PE and Music, demonstrate good table manners during Snack Time, and were engaged and interactive during Circle Time. These are very important milestones for our littlest "St. Lukers" and we couldn't be more proud of them!

Of course, we have also been busy at work! Take a look around the classroom. The children created beautiful "Peace Doves" in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.. They also painted water color murals of the Hail Mary prayer. Next week we are going to give all those little muscles in our hands and arms a workout with more painting and some fun with play dough!

Next week we will officially launch "P3 Bookclub"! Each child will be assigned a week to bring in books for the class to enjoy under our reading tree. We have a shared "Reading Tree Book Bag" that the children will take turns bringing home and filling with books. Be sure to check those backpacks so you know when it's your turn!

Special Note: The Parent Perception Survey will be going out via email on Monday, Jan 13th. Your feedback is important to us and can help shape the future of our school. Results are shared at the State of the School presentation on Feb. 27th. Thank you in advance for your kind participation!

We have a busy week ahead. Let's get to it!
