

Dear Parents,

Thank you to our wonderful parents who put on fabulous Halloween parties. All had a good time! If you haven't had a chance to sign up for conferences, be sure to do so soon. Spots are filling up. Also, complete the conference parent questionnaire. (both links are attached)

Next week is short and busy. Spelling will only be four days due to our day off on Friday for Veteran's Day. We will not have grammar. We are honoring Veterans with an assembly on Thursday at 9:00 a.m. We are honoring all veterans in our lives. Look at the information below and in the Thursday WRAP about how you can participate. All are invited.

Next week, we will be exploring plant life cycles. We will learn that all flowering plants start out as seeds, grow, and must be pollinated to grow new baby plants. We will play a game that explores how changes to pollinators in a garden result in changes to the life cycles of the plants. We will also be going up to our garden to look at the plants we grew from seeds in the classroom and then planted there to see how they are doing.

You can extend your child's learning by paying attention to the life cycles of the plants around you. Can you spot a bee stopping at a flower at the park? Ask your child what will happen to that plant next. Does the orange you're eating have seeds in it?

The children are well on their way to helping Drake and Nell solve mysteries in "The Case of the Gaspig Garbage." For every two chapters (one mystery started and solved in those two chapters), they are given new vocabulary words to learn and are tested on those words when we finish the mystery. They are learning how to use RAP (restate the question, answer the question, prove your answer), a comprehension strategy that helps children give well-thought-out and complete answers to questions about the text. We will be having them use this same strategy when they answer questions in all the subject areas.

We are coming to the end of our "Crafting Personal Stories" unit in the next couple of weeks. Each student has a draft of their story. We are now doing the hard part of revising to add to the heart of our stories. Our writing process is getting messy as we reconstruct our stories to improve them. We are cutting out parts and adding new ones. Once this process is complete, we will begin the editing process. Final drafts will be due no later than Friday, November 17th.
